

Pacific Ocean Satellite change and bandwidth increase

As of this afternoon, the Pacific Ocean Region (POR) service to the large C-band ships is 2 Mbit from shore-to-ship and 256kbps from ship-to-shore for each vessel at sea. This represents a great increase in the bandwidth available to and from those research vessels. Service is now being provided by Intelsat's IS-18 satellite.